Monologue

Dr. Peter Glidden fills in for Dr. Wallach today. Starting the show discussing Dr. Wallach's background and outlining much of Doc research and accomplishments. Contending that Doc has probably forgotten more about medicine than most MDs ever learn.

Pearls of Wisdom

Doug Winfrey and Dr. Glidden discuss a news article concerning a recent report. Which states there will be an increase in cancer cases by 75% globally by the year 2030. The biggest increases are predicted to by in middle and low income regions of the world. This attributed to adopting "Western" style lifestyles of smoking and eating fast foods. Doug cites a previous study that looked at the percentages of the 34 most common cancers between 1975 and 2006. Researchers found when looking at patients diagnosed, patients treated and patients who died from cancer compared to census data for the population. In over thirty years there has been little to no change in these percentages.
