Monologue

Dr. Wallach starts the show discussing his newest CD titled "What Kills Billionares". Contending that despite the fact billionares can affort the very best health insurance and doctors. They still die from heart disease, diabetes, cancer etc. just like the rest of us. Asserting this is because medical doctors don't have the knowledge of how to prevent and reverse chronic illnesses.

Pearls of Wisdom

Doug Winfrey and Dr. Wallach discuss a news article concerning a study on daily aspirin users. The study researchers were attempting to confirm the findings of a previous study from 2011. The earlier study found that people taking at least one aspirin a week were more likely to develope age related vision loss. Referring to wet macular degeneration the leading cause of blindess in older people. The more recent study of nearly 2500 Australians found those taking at least one aspirin a week were twice as likely to develope wet macular degeneration than those not taking the drug.
