{enclose http://dev.ksco.got.net/podcasts/2012-09-29.mp3}

The following is a KSCO commentary. Here is Kay Zwerling:

Let's call this provoking thoughts, and it is in my book.

While sitting in a doctor's waiting room recently, I reached for a magazine and four large words on the outside back cover jumped out at me. They were "Live happily ever now." I thought, wow – most of us tend to go through our allotted years thinking of the time when we can live happily ever after – like if I get a better job, or if I get to own a house, or a nice car, or if I get to travel a lot, or maybe get a windfall of money, that then I will be happy. That is not wise. After all, all we have each got is now. And, now is all we will ever have. So, let's try to Live Happily Ever Now.

About the Democrats – they want to give amnesty to everyone, so they will be happy. And, just think of the extra votes for them, and how unfair for those who patiently waited years to come in legally. We should have learned after President Reagan ordered amnesty years ago – that the illegal problem got much worse. Besides, if we do not respect and enforce our own laws, why then should any person or any nation respect us and our laws?

Another provoking thought: This is about Jewish humor and Jewish inebriation (that means getting drunk). Around the Middle Ages, Jews made sure to always remain sober and aware because they were the hated scapegoats for being money lenders, like bankers today, and especially they were considered pariahs for rejecting Jesus as being divine and as being the Messiah.

The Old Testament states that when the Messiah finally arrives, the world and everyone will be good and peace will prevail. I still believe that Jesus was a special extraordinary human being because He knew that love was the answer.

Jews have suffered all sorts of indignities and they learned early on that education was the most important for them because knowledge is power, and secondly the hate they endured allowed them to survive because of another most important ingredient in life and that is humor. If one can endure with humor, one can survive almost anything.

For KSCO, this is Kay Zwerling.

© copyright 2012