{enclose

http://media40.podbean.com/pb/3e3ad4407ac827b6e04a7b8e4f489b47/50d541a5/data2/blogs 24/337167/uploads/TCR-12142012A.mp3 25984670 audio/mpeg}

Paul H. O'Neill was the 72nd Secretary of the U.S. Treasury, serving from 2001-2002. The uncommonly outspoken business leader was appointed Secretary of the U.S. Treasury, then forced out in short order after challenging President Bush's tax cuts. Prior to politics, O'Neill was chairman and CEO of Alcoa from 1987 to 1999 and President of International Paper Company from 1985 to 1987.